

Fare's Fair

Wednesday, January 14, 2009

Raphael Bejar, chief executive and founder of AirSavings

Fare's fair

Airports should think twice about raising their charges during the credit crunch, warns Raphael Bejar, chief executive and founder of AirSavings, who believes that instead of hurting airlines when they are down, airport managers need to focus on improving services and developing new revenue streams.

Listen now \(MP3\)

